PUT IT IN CHURCHIN'

If your church is serious about ministry, outside the walls, people want to know just what you're doing. Maybe they can support it, or even benefit spiritually from it. But first, you need an outreach to let them know just what's going on with you.

Join our Family of Sponsors and get all of your church news and events listed monthly in CHURCHIN' free with your Sponsorship.

Sponsorships start at as little as $30 a month. When you contract with us for 6 months or more, it's even less cost.

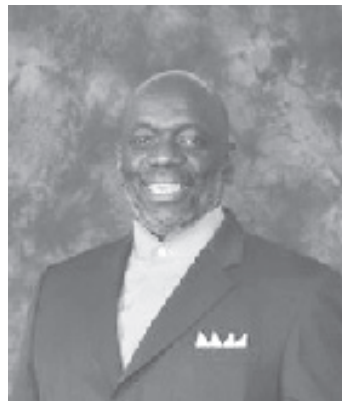
5 Ways to Upgrade Your Leaders This Summer



You may or may not know the lyrics to the George Gershwin tune "Summertime?" "Summertime, and the livin' is easy; fish are jumpin' and the cotton is high." There's no denying that things are dialed back a little bit during the summer. This is why this is an excellent time to take advantage of the slower pace to get your leaders ready for fall by exposing them to creative, intentional times of development. Here are some tips.

1. Meet with your leaders one-on-one.
After a full six months of ministry, take time to meet with each of your leaders one-on-one. Take time to catch up and hear about their life - both ministry and otherwise. Then give constructive feedback on their leadership and give them the opportunity to give you feedback as well. Ask how you can better support them in the coming months.

2. Thank your leaders.
It's time to thank your leaders for all their hard work and sacrifice this year. Plan an event or a one-day retreat that doesn't include any training or official ministry business.

I believe a grateful attitude is tied to an abundance mentality. Whatever your leadership responsibility is, you need to say two words - "Thank you" - often and genuinely.

3. Train new leaders.
If you're planning on launching several new groups this fall - or relaunching your whole ministry - summer is a great time to train brand-new leaders. There are a several ways to do this. Do the research; find out what resources are available to help you to plan meaningful training opportunities for your new and not-so-new leaders. Are there online resources you could use? Is there a training kit your leaders can access?

4. Hold special training sessions. If summer is a slower time at your church, you might put off large training events until the fall, but there are other ways to continue training in the summer. When you meet one-on-one with your leaders, you'll likely hear about some topics that your leaders need additional training in. Rather than plan big training events during the busy summer months, plan several low-key, optional training sessions that cover various hot topics.

5. Throw a launch party.
Before fall hits, invest in your leaders by throwing a launch party for your ministry. Use the time to cast a vision for the balance of the year, clearly state your expectations, pray for the Spirit to move, and get everyone involved and excited. Make it festive with food and decorations.

Summer at your Church doesn't have to be an unproductive or middling season. Take advantage of the slower pace to improve leadership effectiveness.

We'll talk again next month!

A Life of Unresolved Issues

Part 1

" So the apostles and elders met together to resolve this issue." (Acts 15:6)

The dangers of unresolved issues can have a debilitating effect on your life. As a believer, it is important to your Christian walk that you prayerfully and carefully know how to properly handle unresolved issues. Other synonyms for the word "unresolved" are, unsettled, uncertain, up in the air, unclear and vague. When you have these types of voids in your life, it can have a lasting effect on your growth and development.

Unresolved issues often birth through offenses, hurts, disappointments, bad deals, mistakes, financial hardships and/or failures, just to name a few. They are unfortunate and inevitable in life. We must remember that each and every one of us carries baggage from our past that affects our relationships and affairs in the present. How you handle an unresolved issue will 1) testify to your character (integrity), 2) expose your walk (level of maturity) and 3) determine the outcome of your future.

The Apostle Paul reminds us that we must be diligent to "walk circumspectly [diligent carefulness], not as fools, but as wise, [make the most of every opportunity], because the days are evil." (Eph. 5:15-16) So it is important that in this walk we gain the courage to face up to unresolved issues.

Facing up to an unresolved issue is all dependent upon the nature of its cause. Naturally, before taking any recourse to resolving unresolved issues, you must first begin with prayer. This is your opportunity to release your frustration, hurt, concern, etc. in the presence of God before taking it out on the others. This is your "cooling off" period and works only if you yield yourself to the Holy Spirit helping you to "cool off." Depending on the nature of the unresolved issue, you may need longer cool-off sessions, but utilize this time to ask the Holy Spirit to help you to put on a mindset of humility, patience, tolerance, peace and reconciliation to face up to your unresolved issues. If necessary, seek out wise counsel to give you guidance in this area as well.

Paul eloquently put it this way:

"Always be humble and gentle. Be patient with each other, making allowance for each other's faults because of your love. Make every effort to keep yourselves united in the Spirit, binding yourselves together with peace." (Eph 4:2-3)

I realize that it may take some to resolve unresolved issues, but the fact of the matter is you owe it to yourself to face up to these issues and live the abundant life that Christ afforded to each of us, determined and set free.

"Millennials unite in the Great commission"

According to my birth year, I am a part of the Baby Boomers' Generation. Our characteristics have been marked with words like the "Me" Generation and the "Moral Authority". The generation after mine, Generation X, has been labeled "The Doer" since they ushered in the world of latchkey kids. The newest or youngest generation is known as Centennials or Generation Z and are still being studied but are surely the most tech savvy. But my focus this month is on "Generation Y". Generation Next or better known as The Millennials! Truly this generation is the most identifiable and undeniable generations ever characterized.

In this season, I've been praying with and interceding for Millennials. As much as I love them, they are not the easiest to reach. I must admit however, this age group always has my heart because I vividly remember the challenges of these years in my own life. The years of 22 to late 30's were the real beginnings of Adult Life and 'Firsts'. Don't you remember? You got your first place, your first bills, your first love….. your first everything! You could go to church – or not; go to clubs and partake in everything that came with that right -- or not; and test the truth of what your beliefs and virtues were and why. It was during these years however that I sought and established a real relationship with God and was saved. This year, there are several gospel artists who are joining forces to offer Christ to their peers, Gen X style. Some have new music aimed directly at Millennials to make them disciples or to draw them closer to God. Who knows better the life message needed than one living that life?

The Transition of Mali by Mali Music sends his peers a melody of comfort entitled "It's Gonna Be Alright". Smooth as butter and full of hope. Jonathan McReynold's first live recording recently completed in hometown Chicago continues his focus on life matters in The Life Room. Preasha Hilliard's The Glory Experience is already a chart-topper with high praise and diversity. Travis Greene's overnight drop, "You Waited" shows he identifies with the average Millennial as does his concerts with buddies Jonathan Mc and Anthony Brown appropriately called The Worship Tour. Then what can we say about The Bloody Win Tour featuring Tasha Cobbs, Jekalyn Carr, Tye Tribbett and JJ Hairston??? Amazing. Authentic. Unprogrammed. Just like our Millennials who respect a big God, not hip ministers. These new releases and tours are just snippets of the young artists who are speaking Godly truth to millennials and all who will listen. It would bless God if all generations would listen to one another, commit to the Great Commission and simply 'make disciples'.

May peace be your journey…

First Fruits

"If the first loaf is holy, all the bread is holy. If the root is holy, all the branches are holy." Romans 11:16 (NLV)

Throughout the summer beginning June 1st through August 31st 2017, the GSSFC Family is challenged to give God the first fruits of all that we are and develop practices that place ourselves in a position for God to change us, draw us close to Him, and bring His will into our world.

First Breath (Praying with God)
When you wake up in the morning, before your feet hit the floor, pray this prayer (or any one of your choosing): This is the day that You have made. I will rejoice and be glad in it. (Psalm 118:24).

First Thought (Reflecting on God)
Before you get the newspaper, turn on the TV, check Facebook, your phone, your email, or give any thought to any other venture, spend at least five minutes reading God's Word.

First Dime (Giving to God)
Whether you get a paycheck, social security, retirement, disability, or any other source of income, before you put money anywhere else, set aside the first portion to give to God at your next opportunity.

First Words (Encouragement from God)
Make the first words you speak to those you encounter be encouraging. Not superficial compliments, but words of blessing.

First Sacrifice (Communion with God)
Begin every day contemplating the sacrifice Jesus made for you, and consider what you can sacrifice in order for people to see Jesus in you.

TRAITS OF A GODLY FATHER

Deuteronomy 6:6-7; James 1:19; Colossians 3:21

I. INTRODUCTION

As we probe the important dates in the calendar year, we must acknowledge that Father's Day is not valued as highly as some other days. For instance, most church members are familiar with the CME church goers which stand for Christmas, Mother's Day, and Easter. These three holidays of the year are highly commercialized and respected among the American population. However, when we look at the role of the godly father as the priest, provider, and protector, he deserves our admiration.

The bible gives many examples of fathers. For instance, Eli is considered as an ineffective father because he did not discipline his sons. One of the main duties of a father is to provide effective discipline for their children's protection. Per 1 Samuel 2:22-26, we see that Eli had knowledge of his sons lying with the women at the temple gate. After his sons' neglect of his advice, Eli should have removed them from their priestly office. It is a sin when children do not heed the godly advice of a father. In this case, the Lord had determined that Eli and his sons would die for their disobedience. It is quite possible that Eli's sons Hophni and Phineas may have felt that their father did not want them to have any fun. How many times have you felt that your father did not want you to have any fun? Have you ever been instructed by your father to not hang out all night?

It is stated in Job 1:4-5 that Job led the family into the worship experience. Job was involved with his children socially and he led them spiritually. As priest of the home, we should lead the family into devotion to the Lord. The cycle of family feast was a way for Job to keep the family close. It has been stated that when a family prays together then they will stay together. How often do you pray with your family?

II. A Father's Dedication; Deuteronomy 6:6-

In this rapidly changing and advanced technological society, a father must find a way to make time for his children. Do you show your children that they are important to you? As fathers, we make many sacrifices for our children. Some of these sacrifices include food, shelter, and clothing. Although these things are necessities for every family, do you spend quality time with your children? If a father does not spend quality time with his children, then your sons or daughters may conclude that you care more for your job, your friends, or your toys than you do for them. Do you take the time to attend your children's school events or are you too busy to attend? Today's family structure has a lot of demands but we must not lose track of the real essence of the family. Our legacy as fathers will not be very good if we do not take the time to care about our children. We must make sure that our children feel that we are approachable because we cannot help them if they do not feel they can tell us their intimate thoughts. Please note that these are teachable moments in the family.

We know that mothers tend to talk with their children while they are in the womb. Medical advice informs society that approximately sixteen weeks after conception, an unborn baby might begin to hear. At this stage of the birth process, fathers can start to begin their bond with the children. An informed father will listen to the baby's heartbeat, feel the baby's kick, talk and sing to him/her. A father's relationship should begin while the child is in the womb. Throughout your children's life, your relationship with the mother should not affect your love and dedication to your children. As fathers we must not allow a failed relationship to affect quality time with our children.

When we look at this passage in Deuteronomy, we see that the father has an innate responsibility to speak the Word of life to their children when they sit in the house and when they walk along life's pathway. We must speak the Word of life to our children when they lie down and when they arise in the morning. Do you take time to pray with your children? Do you take the time to pray with their mothers? This is the type of leadership that our families need in this world.

III. A Father's Dialogue, James 1:19

In this passage, we are reminded of the traits that we should have as effective parents. To communicate effectively, a father must be a careful listener. Now I must admit that it is sometimes difficult to practice this trait because it takes patience. Do you want your children confiding in other people? How can you guarantee that other people will give your children sound advice if you neglect to do it yourself?

If your children think that you will lose your cool every time they bring a challenging issue to you, then you may deprive yourself of those teachable moments. Experience teaches us that our children grow up faster than we can imagine. It is not always an easy task to tune in to our children when we are busy. Yet, if you want your children to express their inner feeling to you, a father will not be judgmental but rather execute patience and understanding. If a father elects to listen to their children calmly, they will feel genuine interest in them. Thus, they will share their precious thoughts with you as a parent.

In James 1:19, James instructs the father with some godly wisdom. "Every man must be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath." How many times have you put your foot in your mouth? Or what would you give to take those words back that you spoke to your love ones? It is interesting that the Lord gave us two ears to hear and one mouth to speak. We should listen twice as much as we speak and this can help alleviate those problematic situations.

IV. A Father's Discipline, Colossians 3:21

As fathers, we must be careful how we administer discipline. We must always consider the best interest of our children even when we are angry with their behavior. Have you ever disciplined your children when you were angry and how did you feel afterwards? Discipline includes advice, correction, education, and chastisement, when appropriate. While growing up, I observed that my father would administer a different kind of discipline as we grew older. My father would talk with me about life's situations which included the dating scene and effective problem-solving. He would tell us that we needed to pray before we entered any relationship and to pray for our friends.

As I remember the loving instruction of my father, I want to thank him for taking the time to care about me. A godly father will do his best to instruct his children in righteousness and provide appropriate discipline when necessary. Yet, we must not be too hard on our children. In Ephesians 6:4, "Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord." Since God is our Heavenly Father, are you teachable? Please note that knowledge brings understanding. Would your pastor consider you as teachable or do you know everything already? As children, do you allow your father and mother to teach you the ways of the Lord?

As good fathers, we must know when to acknowledge and appreciate the unique children that the Lord has blessed us with. No two children are the same and they deserve our unique attention and devotion. One child may be a wonderful musician and while another may be a great athlete. Each unique gift is from the Lord. Another child may be a student of education. Children blossom when they are given the space to grow into what the Lord has destined for their lives.

In conclusion, there are several godly traits of a good father. Nevertheless, we as fathers must acknowledge there is always room to grow and improve. Fathers and mothers have an awesome responsibility to rear their children in the admonition of the Lord. How are you doing with your parental responsibilities?

Yours in Christ, Rev. J.R. Brumfield

MONEY MATTERS!!

Financial Illiteracy Is Causing the Collapse of the African-American Middle Class

When it comes to financial stability, African-Americans are often in much more precarious financial situations than white Americans. These facts are not new. However, what is most unsettling about the current economic climate is that African- families attain middle-class status; the likelihood that their children will remain there, or do better, is very low.

Financial illiteracy is a major is plaguing Americans of all ethnicities, but, African-Americans are far more likely to be affected. The reason, as stated earlier, is that generationally, financial education/literacy has not been addressed as a means of long-term financial survival. Even the majority of college educated African-Americans are financially illiterate, mainly because overall financial literacy has not been a focal point in most educational institutions at all levels.

Too many African-Americans spend more time, money, and energy trying to learn how to earn a better income, than spending time, money, and energy learning how to make their money work for them.

There are many indentifying factors that indicate financial illiteracy is causing the collapse of middle-class African-Americans. Examples:

1. Relying solely on earned income
2. Not purchasing a home
3. Not pooling money to invest
4. Purchasing new automobiles
5. Not investing outside of a retire plan
6. Not purchasing proper amounts of life insurance
7. Not restructuring/repositioning their personal finances
8. Not establishing a Trust or a Will
9. Not investing in passive income products, i.e. real estate, business
10. Not seeking financial education, advice, or counseling
11. Not establishing long-term investment plan
12. Not monitoring personal finances, i.e. interest rates, insurance rates,
13. Not focusing on asset accumulation
14. Not maximizing taking full advantage of tax codes
15. Not stressing the importance of financial education to their children
16. Not maintaining or managing their credit

Millions of middle-class African-Americans families will meet their financial demise because they failed to recognize the importance of financial literacy. "Income helps you get by, assets help you get ahead".
