"The LEADER'S EDGE" by drmichaelbell

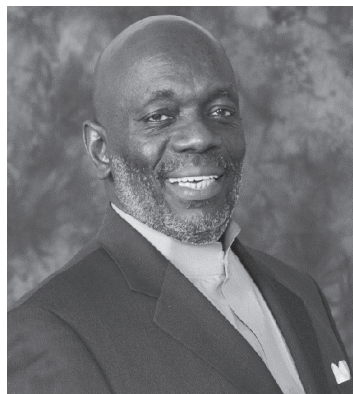

Have you ever stopped to consider the consequences of the choices that you make? I hope the answer is yes because choices have consequences. You and I make many choices throughout every day. Some choices we are aware of and others are so innate that they've become habits. Each choice does, of course, have consequences, with both pluses and minuses.

Again, choices and consequences are inextricably bound. This is one of the most important lessons for leaders. We can't expect to get the consequences we want if we make unwise choices. And every choice is important. There are no inconsequential choices.

Church leaders are required to make decisions every day and churches are like many other entities in that people have opinions and can have strong feelings about how things are done. Churches make countless decisions about things like how to relate to members and how members relate to each other, strategic planning, budgeting, ministry programs, who does what and when, internal operations, and so much more.

There are typically three groups of people that make church decisions. Each has a different perspective, but all feel like they have the best interest of the church at heart.

- Members. Utilizing the skills and knowledge base of members is a great way to enhance church operations and validate membership involvement. I, personally, encourage every supportive member to use their voice.
- Pastor. A pastor feels called of God, and his or her focus is to implement the vision that God has given him or her for the church. Most churches in the Black idiom are not multi-staffed. In some instances, small-church pastors are part-time secretary, part-time business administrator, part-time custodian and part-time sound system operator/vid-eographer. The pastor's role in decision-making is contingent on the way the church is organized. Let me add this footnote: No matter how much leverage a pastor might have in the local church setting, he or she would be wise to regularly consult the church's lay leadership.

- Board and Councils. Some churches are led by a Deacon Board and/or a Trustee Board. The responsibilities of the boards and councils and how they relate to the pastor need to be well defined if the church is to fulfill God's purposes.

A healthy church does a good job of balancing all of these different perspectives. Church leaders in a healthy church make decisions together. Decisions are team efforts. They involve different people with different priorities trying to reach agreement on a shared problem which, admittedly, isn't an easy thing to do.

There is one more footnote I need to share with you. Within the realm of Christian leadership, decision making should be undergirded by Biblical foundations. The Word of God is the bedrock upon which all good decision-making is built. God's Word guides our decision-making. From simple, everyday choices to the big things us in our lives. It is the only trustworthy basis for the beginning of thoughts, ideas, actions and practices. James 1:5 provides us with excellent counsel: "If you do not have wisdom, ask God for it. He is always ready to give it to you and will never say you are wrong for asking."

National Juneteenth Museum launches in Fort Worth

The National Juneteenth Museum will be built in Fort Worth as part of a mixed-use development that will help revitalize the city's Historic Southside neighborhood.

Declared a federal holiday on June 17, 2021, when President Joe Biden signed the law with Opal Lee by his side, Juneteenth has sparked celebrations worldwide. Juneteenth commemorates freedom for the enslaved via the abolition of slavery in the United States.

Lee is affectionately known as the Grandmother of Juneteenth and has been leading the charge to see the National Juneteenth Museum become a reality.

"To have lived long enough to see my walking and talking make an impact is one thing, but to know that a state-of-the-art museum that will house the actual pen that President Biden used to sign the bill, and many other exhibits, is coming to pass as well -- I could do my holy dance again," Lee said.

The National Juneteenth Museum will be erected on land that currently houses Lee's Fort Worth Juneteenth Museum that has served the community for nearly two decades and was a production location in the feature film Miss Juneteenth.

As the epicenter for the preservation of Juneteenth history and a center for discussions about freedom, the new museum will host events and exhibits that foster continued conversation on the global significance of freedom and the celebration of Juneteenth worldwide. The museum will also host seminars and lectures by renowned authorities on historical perspectives of freedom.

The museum will be led by a collaboration of activists, researchers, historians and everyday people who understand the influence of history on the trajectory of the human experience. It will educate guests on the legacy and experiences of the enslaved and provide factual narratives about people who overcame the trials and hardships of oppression.

Fort Worth Mayor Mattie Parker said she is excited to add this concept to an already renowned collection of world-class museums in the city. "For decades, Juneteenth has been part of the fabric of our city, and this museum is a welcome addition to its incredible legacy."

Speak Life Thought

with First Lady & Co-Pastor Yolanda G. Butler

"A Life of Gratitude"

And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God. (Luke 17:15)

Ten men comprised of Jews and Samaritans, which in and of itself is an uncommon mix, all shared a common denominator—they all bore a disease known as leprosy. Oxford Dictionary defines leprosy as a "contagious bacterial disease that affects the skin, mucous membranes, and nerves, causing discoloration and lumps on the skin and, in severe cases, disfigurement and deformities." In Biblical times if you had leprosy you were labeled as an outcast, quarantined from the general public, and considered unclean because of the severity of the disease.

These "outcasts" obviously spent a lot of time with each other and may have very well tried to think of a way they could be healed of their misery. That day came when they heard about a man named Jesus who was healing the sick and making His way through their town. These men formed a chorus and sang a song entitled, "Have mercy on us." Their song obviously got the attention of Jesus for the Bible says that Jesus "saw" them. He responded not only to their song but to their faith with a single command to present themselves before the priest for examination. Although healing had not yet manifested, their song of faith turned into a walk of faith, which led to their healing. Nine joyfully continued on their journey to see the priest as Jesus had instructed except one. Was he disobedient to the Master's instructions? On the contrary, this nameless outcast recognized that the miraculous healing that manifested in his life and that of his nine cohorts was worthy of personal thanksgiving and gratitude. So, rather than continue with his buddies, he broke ranks, and returned back to the One who took the time to acknowledge his faith and transform his life.

What can we learn from this lesson? Faith gets the attention of the Master, not pity or despair although He is not deaf to the cries of His hurting child. Never take for granted the goodness of the Lord, the kindness of the Lord, the grace of the Lord nor the favor of the Lord. It was not that the one leper was disobedient to Jesus' instruction. It was that he recognized that he owed Jesus an in-person thank you. Greetings cards, delivered flowers, and text messages are all wonderful expressions of gratitude but there is nothing more personable than an in-person contact of gratitude. There is no injury to breaking away from the crowd to get away to worship. Because this one man turned back to express his appreciation, he received something even greater for his gratitude—the saving of his soul.

Jesus did not single out any of the ten lepers. They were all touched by His love, grace, and mercy. The least likely one is the one who was most appreciative of them all and demonstrated it when he went back to where his new began. This year has had many ups and downs. However, I encourage you to take a moment to forget not those graceful moments in your life where you experienced the Father's salvation, healing, deliverance, and protection, not once in your life but time and time again. (See Psalm 103)

We are also reminded to have a heart of gratitude and not take for granted those who have shown kindness to us. We can all get so busy caught up in our everyday lives and forget about those who have helped us along the way. It doesn't cost much to express gratitude and to say, thank you." Just as you are thankful for the gift, forget not the giver. As you are quick to pray, be quick to praise.

So dear hearts, be determined to forget not all that the Father and others have done by extending kindness in your life. In everything be thankful for this is the will of God concerning you in Christ Jesus.

The Season to Keep on Keeping ON!

Remember Bishop Carlton Pearson's first Azusa Conference album that included Mother Sherman's story? The sainted church mother would always ask Bishop Pearson from a child up to his adult years the same question, "you yet holding on?" And after little Carlton would adamantly declare that he was, Mother Sherman would always follow up with this directive, "then keep on keeping on"! It's in that same spirit that I believe we are all committed to doing in these times of many world challenges. Numerous Covid-19 variants – keep on keeping on. Global warming – keep on keeping on. Blatant racism at every turn – keep on keeping on. Economic instability, mental health weariness, limited supplies, disrupted work and family routines, social isolation and still – we must keep on keeping on.

Gratefully, in the season that promises new hope through the celebration of our Lord's earthly birth, we surely are strengthened with the joy He brings. Praise God for the minstrels, songwriters and psalmists who created new music and events for Christmas 2021. Here are just a few for your consideration.

Dare Records' CD, "A Countdown to Christmas" features powerhouse vocalists KeKe Wyatt, Travis Malloy and the Winans, Juan and Lisa. Their unique repertoire will create nostalgic and even romantic joy bells. Black Smoke Music Label owner, Kerry Douglas has gathered his dynamic artists to record a "Gospel Mix Christmas" project. With the likes of Zacardi Cortez, Earnest Pugh, Monica Lisa Stevenson, Keith Wonderboy Johnson and Nikki Ross, get ready for vibrant worship with squalling quartet and gospel riffs. Now for choir directors in search of a new uplifting seasonal song, hurry up and teach "He's Still the Light" by Patrick Lundy and the Ministers of Music. The music is a big brass band sound, but the vocals are rich, traditional gospel tones. Multi-awarded composer David Frasier was led by the Holy Ghost to write, "The Healing Song", also appropriate for this season. Raymond D. Jackson delivers the life-giving musical message.

For a 'live' Christmas music experience, Christian veteran artist Chris Tomlin will perform his "Emmanuel Christmas Songs of Worship" in Tyler, TX., Dec 3-4 at the Crosswalk at Green Acres Baptist Church. Damien Sneed's project "Joy to the World: A Christmas Musical Journey" will tour all month in California with an ensemble of fabulous singers set to stir up delight through Sneed's classical arrangements. And if you're in the Philly area towards the end of December, try to attend the "Joyful Holiday Experience" Concert. The star studded event will be held at the 10,000 seat Liacouras Center and feature Marvin Sapp, Ricky Dillard and New G, LeAndria Johnson, Charles Jenkins and The Clark Sisters. Every seat will probably be needed. What a way to close the year and season.

Whatever you do during this sacred season, may it fill you with great hope, stronger faith and more Jesus Joy. Let the directive found within Philippians 3:14 (Press towards the mark for the prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus) guide you to Keep On Keeping On!!!

May Peace be Your Journey

they've endured for years. Lastly, for other readers, it will punctuate the truth of who they are, what they do and why they exist.

The compilation of stories in 'Cover Girl' are illuminated to lift women to their life's highest achievements. This book doesn't beg the question, "can you

We've heard for centuries about what women can't do, isn't it time to find out exactly what they can? "She's A Cover Girl in the Real World" inspires readers by sharing what women have already done, in scripture. For some readers, this book will serve as a conversation starter. For others it will serve as a continuation of the tiresome talk do what God is asking you?" The book provides the answer with proof from women found in scripture. Are there limits to what women can do in the world and even the church? Scripture may provide a different answer than what we've been told. 'Cover Girl' is written with Mary the mother of Jesus in mind. What was inconceivable to her was made possible by her faith filled agreement with the word of God for her. With her yes, the angel replied, "there will be a performance" and for inspired readers of the book, the same may also ring true.

Though immaculate conception isn't the lot of this book's readers, struggling to walk out their life's purpose can seem just as daunting. 'Cover Girl' seeks to undo years of subjugation, poor public perception, low self-worth, doubt, and fear. If readers follow the example of the women whose stories this book highlights, they too may see themselves as a cover girl with a story to share! You're invited to find out more about the book and the stories presented within at: www.amightyread.com.

ARLINGTON-Aug. 30, 1956, is a little-known anniversary in the Metroplex education system.

On that day, Pastor Floyd S. Moody and two other students attempted to integrate public schools in Mansfield, Texas. This was in Tarrant County two years after Brown v. Board of Education and a year before the Little Rock Nine attempted the same in Arkansas.

The Mansfield Three, as they became known, were unsuccessful. After being denied enrollment by members of the white community in Mansfield and Tarrant County, who formed mobs and barricades to stop the students from entering, Texas Gov. Allan Shivers would ultimately side with the community, sending Texas Rangers -- the law enforcement, not the baseball team -- to uphold segregation.

The school district was integrated the following year.

Now, the baseball Texas Rangers are working to raise awareness for the history of the little-known event and to celebrate Pastor Moody and the Black community in Tarrant County.

The club is partnering with the Black on Base Negro Leagues for Project the Positivity Night as the club takes on the Colorado Rockies on the 65th anniversary of the fight to integrate Mansfield High School.

A number of pregame ceremonies were planned to commemorate the event. Pastor Moody, the lone surviving member of the Mansfield Three, threw out the first pitch. His daughter, Beverly Lightfoot sang the national anthem alongside the Ministers Justice Coalition of Texas choir. Donations from the game and the pregame ceremonies will be donated to the Black on Base nonprofit organization.

"[The Rangers] were kind of touched by my story, and they wanted to do something for the neighborhood and for the Black community," Pastor Moody said. "I'm pleased and thankful for the Rangers and what they have done and what they will do. It's a situation where everybody will be blessed."

The Rangers became aware of Pastor Moody and the Mansfield Three story when the Ministers Justice Coalition and Black on Base met with the front office earlier this year. Pastor KP Tatum, who is now the reverend at Moody's New Mount Rose Missionary Baptist Church in Fort Worth, worked with the Rangers to coordinate the event.

The biggest theme of the day comes from Pastor Moody himself: "Get Better, Not Bitter" -- which is a call for unity, even through tough and negative events like what he went through with the attempt to integrate Mansfield.

"When we had the opportunity to meet with Pastor Moody and Pastor Tatum, it was one of those things where we knew we needed to listen," said Rangers director of community impact Ray Casas. "And I think listening is incredibly important. That's the only way we're going to get better as a community."

"When we heard the story, we just tried to figure out how we could honor Pastor Moody and his work. A lot of people would have just been angry, but the way that Pastor Moody has lived his life, and how he taught people to live with courage and conviction, I mean, allowing him to throw out the first pitch was the least we could do as an organization."

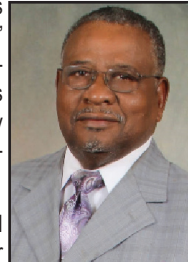

In his retirement at 82 years old, Pastor Moody has been focused on building a better community for Black kids in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Part of that has always been through baseball.

Pastor Moody admits that he was never very good at baseball, but he played and coached in Tarrant County. Whether he's good or bad at the sport itself, his main focus is helping young Black men in the community.

One of the most prideful things of Pastor Moody's life was watching boys he coached grow up to be doctors and lawyers and any number of other professions.

So it means that much more to Pastor Moody that the Rangers are stepping forward to help the Black community in recent years. Starting with the Texas Rangers MLB Youth Academy, the organization has consistently worked to share the sport of baseball with the community and grow together.

"With the Rangers on our side, I feel like we can't lose," Moody said. "We're going forward with the Rangers and I thank God for the Rangers, what they are doing and what they might do in the future. I'm optimistic about it. I believe that good things will come from what we're doing now."

MAKE THE MOST OF LIFE THROUGH YOUR DILEMMA

by Dudley Anderson

Jeremiah 29:11

For I know the plans I have for you," declares the LORD, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future.

Jeremiah predicted that Judah would be conquered by the Babylonians and taken into exile for 70 years. The Jews had rebelled against God and their captivity was the result. However, through Jeremiah, though angry with his people, God instructs them to make the most of their dilemma. He tells them to build houses, plant gardens and have children. They were to seek the welfare of the city where he sent them into exile. He was still with them.

Though God was angry, he still loved his children. Through the same prophet who predicted ruin he says, "I will set my eyes on them for good, and I will bring them back to this land. I will build them up, and not tear them down; I will plant them, and not uproot them," and "For I know the plans I have for you, declares the Lord, plans for welfare and not for evil, to give you a future and a hope."

You may feel as though you're in exile today, far from your dreams of prosperity and peace. Could be you're suffering the ills of a bad decision or a rebellious act but know this... your Lord will never leave you or forsake you. God the Father loves you very much just as a regular dad loves his kids, though they may be stubborn or defiant at times. Even within your dilemma, he is reminding you that every good gift and every perfect gift comes down from the Father of lights with whom there is no variation or shadow due to change. So, don't despair. Like the people of God in Babylonian exile, turn your eyes back to Jesus and make the most of your situation. He is still with you.
